Reading the Data

1. What is the single biggest quick-win opportunity in this data, and what exactly would you do about it?

“Whey protein price” is the biggest quick-win opportunity.

Metric	Current Data
Avg. Position	6.1
Impressions	21,500
Clicks	645
CTR	3.00%

Optimize the title tag, meta description and on-page content for “whey protein price”, and strengthen internal linking to the ranking page. Since it already ranks at 6.1, moving it into the top 3 could generate significantly more clicks.

2. Something is clearly wrong with /blog/protein-guide. List the four most likely causes and how you would verify each.

Metric	Previous 28 Days	Current 28 Days	Change
Clicks	1,240	410	-830 (-67%)
Avg. Position	4.2	11.8	-7.6 positions

Four likely causes + verification:

Likely Cause	How to Verify
Ranking loss	Compare the page's queries and positions in GSC
Indexing/technical issue	Check URL Inspection, indexing, canonical and noindex
Content/competitor changes	Compare content against current top-ranking pages
Internal-link/authority loss	Check internal links and referring pages before vs. now

3. There is a structural problem visible in the page-level table. Name it and give your fix.

There is keyword cannibalization between two pages targeting almost the same intent:

Page	Previous Position	Current Position	Previous Clicks	Current Clicks
`/blog/whey-vs-plant-protein`	7.5	7.1	190	95
`/blog/plant-vs-whey-protein`	9.1	14.6	160	140

Consolidate the overlapping content into one authoritative page, redirect the weaker URL, and consolidate internal links.

4. The client says: "Traffic is flat but you say things are improving — prove it." Which four metrics would you put on the monthly report, and why those four?

Metric	Current Data	Why
Organic Clicks	Page-level data shows 410, 910, 95, 140, 305 across the listed pages	Measures actual traffic generated
Impressions	48,200 / 21,500 / 3,100 / 12,900 / 6,800 across the listed queries	Shows search visibility
Avg. Position	12.4 / 6.1 / 2.3 / 18.7 / 14.2	Shows ranking movement
CTR	0.64% / 3.00% / 23.20% / 0.35% / 1.29%	Shows how effectively visibility converts into clicks

Off-Page

1. Three link-building tactics you would actually run for this brand, in priority order. One line each on effort and realistic monthly output.

Priority	Tactic	What I'd do	Effort	Realistic Monthly Output
1	Digital PR	Pitch expert commentary, nutrition insights and original data to relevant health, fitness and lifestyle publications.	High	2 quality links
2	Guest Outreach	Reach out to relevant nutrition, fitness and wellness websites for expert-led guest contributions and contextual backlinks.	Medium	3 quality links
3	AI Citation	Build authoritative, fact-based content and strengthen relevant third-party brand mentions to improve Origin's visibility in AI-generated answers.	Medium	3 AI citations/mentions

2. Three specific link prospects — real websites with URLs. Two Indian, one international. One line on why each fits.

https://123menlife.com/https://deccanexpress.co.in/https://proveg.org/

3.Name two types of links you would refuse to build for a client, and the risk in each.
spammy link and Low Quality Irrelevant Links which are not niche based

4. A client's rankings drop 40% overnight. What do you do in the first 60 minutes?

- Confirm the drop in GSC/GA4 and check whether it affects all pages or specific URLs/queries.
- Check Google Search status for a potential algorithm update or widespread issue

- Check indexing, robots.txt, noindex, canonical tags, server status and recent technical changes.
- Compare lost queries, rankings, impressions in GSC
- Check recent website/content/deployment changes and identify the affected pages and likely cause.

5. How have AI Overviews changed how you would plan content for a brand like Nutrivive?

- I would shift from keyword-only content to answer-focused, authoritative content.
- Target specific questions and comparison queries, not just high-volume keywords.
- Provide clear, concise answers supported by evidence and expert information.
- Build topical authority around areas such as protein, nutrition, whey vs. plant protein, dosage and product selection.
- Add structured data and clear entity information where relevant.
- Strengthen brand mentions and citations from credible third-party sources, since AI systems can use multiple sources when generating answers.
- Track AI visibility/citations alongside traditional rankings, clicks and CTR.
